Community produced shows like a Different Slant, Audubon's Bay Birds, and Sausalito's Secret History on Radio Sausalito are now available world wide thanks to a new partnership with a radio streaming service.

According to Radio Sausalito founder Jonathan Westerling, the station has been called the greatest littlest radio station in the Bay Area because its foot-stompin' brand of local radio. But the tiny AM signal doesn't reach many outside of Southern Marin.

Radio Sausalito is using San Francisco-based streaming radio service Radionomy at the station's website radiosausalito.org.

"It's pretty amazing to tune into our little station across the bridge or out at the beach, and the Radionomy stream is extremely high-fidelity," Westerling said. "We were lucky to have the help of a local musician Court Mast, who refined our technology so that even though we're a little local station, the sound is world class and rivals any other station out there."
